Today, all kinds of awesome things are happening all over the world. For once technology truly is everywhere and affecting everything at an incredible pace.

However, it is only when technology mixes with other human elements – art, ideas, music, design – that the really special things, the things that will change the world, happen.

TEDxExeter presents

TEDxExeter TECHNOLOGY SALON

TEDxExeter is Exeter's local ideas festival with global reach. Home to 'Ideas worth spreading', their speakers' talks have been viewed almost 15 million times online.

TEDxExeter's first Salon will explore how technology meets the real world, bringing together speakers from academia, the arts and innovative companies to discuss how technology is transforming our lives in ways that are exhilarating yet often controversial.

They will share insights into how machines are teaching themselves to understand their environment, and how tech can reveal the collective consciousness – or hive mind – of large groups of people.

Speakers include:

RAIA HADSELL

Research lead on robot navigation and lifelong learning at Google DeepMind

ALASDAIR ALLAN

Scientist, author, hacker and journalist

SIMON JOHNSON

Uses games, play and agency to help people understand complex subjects

NEIL LAWRENCE

Leads Amazon Research Cambridge, where he is a director of machine learning
